DOARD AIR LINE.

It is denied by members of the firm of John L. Williams & Sons, of this city, large owners of Seaboard Air Line Railway stocks and partners of Mr. John Skelton Williams, president of the Seaboard system, that Mr. Williams is to retire from that position and be succeeded by Mr. B. F. Yoakum, of New York, as rumored in telegrams from New York Monday night. This denial, it is stated, is confirmed by direct information from Mr. John Skelton Williams, who is in New York, and from whom a telegram has been received. Mr. Williams is quoted as saying that the idea of a change in the presidency of the Seaboard is not in contemplation, but that there may be some changes in minor offices.

of a change in the presidency of the Senboard is not in contemplation, but that there may be some changes in minor effices.

At the time of the recently announced alliance of the Senboard with the Rock Island and 'Frisco Interests, it was announced authoritatively that Mr. Williams would remain at the head of the Senboard. It is understood that Mr. Williams and others succeeded in securing temporary control of the Senboard stocks, with the purpose of consummating the negotiations with the Rock Island system, but every assurance is given that Mr. Williams will, not retire from the Senboard presidency.

Parties Wish General Manager of B. & S. Road Declared Bankrupt.

A petition in involuntary bankruptcy was filed in the clerk's office of the United States District Court yesterday by Attorneys W. E. Homes, of Boydton, and G. A. Hanson, of this city, for John A. Waters & Co. and others vs. B. F. Patterson, a trader and buyer and seller of ties and general manager of the Blackstone and Southern Railway, praying that the said Patterson be adjudged an involuntary bankrupt. A process was issued and ordered served on the defendant and those made parties to the action. This process is returnable October 19th, and the defendants are cited to appear and show cause why the prayer of petitioner should not be granted. The alleged bankrupt and those made parties to the suit are enjoined and restrained from allenating, disposing of, transferring or in any way interfering with the assets of the said Patterson and those to whom he has transferred any of his property.

The acts of bankruptcy alleged against Patterson are the transfer or allenation of certain property by deeds to parties

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Blair will spend the winter at Bon Air. Miss Ethel Blair will be at Rawlings Institute, Charlottes-ville, Va. The acts of bankruptcy alleged against Patterson are the transfer or allenation of certain property by deeds to parties named in the petition. The plaintiffs in the suit are John A. Waters & Co., the Cleveland Belting and Machinery Company, E. A. Saunders' Sons Co. and S. T. Beverldge & Co., the two last-named being of this city. The petition was filed about 5:30 o'clock by Mr. G. A. Hanson, aftorney. The claims against the defendant stated in the petition aggregate $4,523,90, of which one debt amounting to $1,329,23 is partially secured. The petition is a voluminous one.

ford's emotional ability.

The story is a strong one and powerful in the love element. Mr. Grandin plays the leading male part. Miss Mountford is said to be highly pleased with this starring vehicle, and hopes to win fresh laurels for herself through it. Mrs. Junius Morris and Miss Maude Kent are visiting New York city. Professor S. C. Mitchell and family have just returned to Richmond College after having spent the summer near Bedford City, Va.

"REAPING THE HARVEST."

In "Reaping the Harvest," which plays at the Academy to-morrow night, there will be seen a high-class melodrama. Tom Filch, the author, has flitted himself with a strong part, and for Miss Julia Romaine, the leading lady, there is every opportunity to shino.

The drama bristles with climaxes and thrills, and they do not depend altogether on scenery effects, ether.

The company is said to be a well baranced one, and to have been very successful on other circuits for the past three seasons.

If love is a germ, then every theatregeer should embrace the opportunity to see Harry Beresford, in J. M. Barrie's most brilliant creation, that of "The Professor's Love Story," in which the clever author, more than in any of his other works ("The Little Minister," "Admiral Creighton" and "The Sister of Jose"), makes use of the little god Cupid's exclusive specialty, for in this play its writer makes an old man, a man of science, a recluse, fall in love. The workings of the germ with which he is infected will be most expressively portrayed by Beresford's pantomimic action, through which the young connellan, as much as with the lines of the play, conveys the action of the theme.

NEW CLASSES IN THE PREMIUM LIST

sues a Notice to the Exhibitors.

Tickets for the Richmond Horse Show of October 13th to 17th, inclusive, are still selling steadily, and many have already been sold. There are still many seats thengaged, however, and probably will be until the date of the show. Meanwhile Mannager Smith is busy directing the final preparations in the matter of the building, the ring, the additional stables, and the enlargement of the band stand.

The most important recent announcement of the management is the addition to the classes of four new ones, all for ponies in harness or under saddle. This is done to add to the interest in the show, and especially for the pleasure of the ladles and children, and promises to bring out the largest exhibit of ponies ever seen here. The prizes in these classes are well worth competiting for. The list of classes has been incorporated in a "Notice to intended exhibitors" to change Class 10 so as to read as stated and to add three new classes to the premium list as stated. Here is the announcement:

Change the conditions of Class No. 10

We would not have suspected it of Justice John, above all others.

To merely think of him as a max who had been bunced in New York would, a month ago, have been to us an idle thought.

But now we know different.
The man above all others, who can read inmost thoughts, and can tell a cold br -2 m a given goods man a mile away, has been buncoed, and it does us good to tell about it.
Four Richmond friends were with Justice John at the time, and not one of them interfered.

They were Greanor Neale, Jake Wella, Chatrie Rex and Harry Gleinn—a capitalist, two theatre men and a lawyer.

It was cold, as they say in the story books, when the party started out to the theatre. They went over to the Majestic to see "The Wizard of Oz," with Fred. Stone, an old Richmong favorite, as the "Animated Scarecrow."

"Geo, it's cold," said J. J., going alone.

"I'll lend you my overcoat," said Grea-

"I'll lend you my overcoat," said Greanor Neale.
And he loaned it.
"It's a wonder you wouldn't buy an overcoat," said somebody in the crowd,
Then Elly Jacoba, who knows something about clothes, came up.
"I'll give you a letter to my friend Harria, in Bleeker Street," he said, "and he will sell you a coat at half price."
So he wrote the note and the next morning the gang went down to Bleeker Street and hunted up Harris.
He was found on the fourth floor of a building, with his name "A. Harris" on the door in golden letters.
Justice John took the letter out of his pocket and hunded it to a small boy who came to the door.
In a minute Mr. Harris appeared, He presented the appearance of a typical German,

"Don't you see what the letter said? That's what it iss." replied Mr. J. J., "But de gentlemans who write de note. Him I know not, yes."

"We want an overcoat." said J. J., "and we want it now."

"Oh, sprecken ze Dutch, catiffelin, swt, iss dot so-o. Den I get me one and show you to him right away."

Then he went away, and the crowd looked out the window towards the Bowery.

"Here he is, gentlemens."

Justice John tried it on. "Good fit." said Harry Glenn.

"Fine." said Charlie Rex.
"Superb." said Greanor Neale.

"Superb." said Greanor Neale.

"Immense," said Jake Wells.

"Sure!" said Mr. Harris.

"How/much?"

"Well, I tell you, gentlemens, on account of de man what write de letter. I let you haf dat coad for eleven tollers and a halluf.

Then they went away, and in Tom Sharkey's soda fountain on Fourteenth Street, that night, they all got together again.

But there were two other men from Richmond in the crowd—Mr. Hub at d.Mr. Globe, both gentlemen who knew good goods when they saw them,

"How much you think I paid for this coat?" asked J. J. of Mr. Hub, on the quict.

He felt the cloth, turned the sleeves.

coat?" asked J. J. of Mr. Hub, on the quiet.

He felt the cloth, turned the sleeved uplooked at the lining.

That's a good coat, he remarked. "I should say a coat like that would bring about, St In Richmond; maybe a little term

"How much did I pay for this coat."
A careful examination was made, and Mr. Globe said: "That coat is worth from $7 to $8."
"Buncoed." said Justice John. "Paid $11.50 for an $8 coat. Take me back to that dear Police Court, where I may put my own price upon things. Greanor Naale and Clerile Rex laughed in unison. And they would better be on the lookout it they ever get before Justice John. T.
